The organizations highlighted above are just a sample of the range of organizations serving the East Palo Alto community. For information on additional organizations, talk with a Haas staff member in the Bing Information & Resource Center (the "BIRC") on the first floor of the Haas Center.

Please see reverse.

Other campus resources and programs:

Public Service Fellowships provide funding for students who have identified a need in the community and want to design a sustainable service project addressing this need. A complete list of Fellowship opportunities is available at the Haas Center and on the web site.

Service-Learning Courses feature service as an integral component of the curriculum. Over thirty courses are available through a wide range of departments. Pick-up a list of the service learning courses from the Haas Center or visit the web site.

Alternative Spring Break Projects provide a chance to explore societal issues beyond the walls of the university through various hands-on service experiences during spring break. Applications are available in late October. For more information visit the web site: www.stanford.edu/group/ASB.

Directed Readings provide students with an opportunity to explore their service interests at a deeper level. Through arrangements with a faculty member, students can read about social issues related to their service endeavors.
